Deposits need to be protected

If you have paid a deposit, either at the property you currently live in or at any property you had lived in since April 2012, then your landlord was required to register your deposit with one of the three government backed tenancy deposit schemes.

As well as registering the deposit, your landlord was also required to provide you with a certificate confirming the deposit had been registered; information known as the Prescribed Information that explains what can happen to the deposit; and a leaflet from the chosen scheme explaining how the tenancy deposit scheme works.

If this has not been complied with, then you may be entitled to compensation.

How it works

Get in touch with us by phone or email and we'll assess your case. All we need to see is a copy of your tenancy agreement from your current or previous agent.

Start your claim

We handle everything for you and guide you all the way through the process. From speaking to you right at the start right through to sending you your money at the end, we make sure you get the best chance of winning your case.

Get your compensation

We make sure your landlord or their managing agent treats you fairly and pays you a fair amount that is in line with what the Government says they must. If we recover any money for you, we take a fee of 35% (plus a small admin charge). It's on a No Win, No Fee basis so if we are unsuccessful, you owe us nothing!
